The Ending of Fall... A Time of Celebration!

Welcome all of my beautiful friends to the ending of Fall and the coming of Winter! This is a time of rapture. A time of celebration for all that you have accomplished in this past year, and what a year it has been! I look out at my cactus silhouetted against my brilliant and tender roses. This year has been like a thorn from the cactus and the soft petals of a flower. In this chaos of challenges and beauty, we are booting our way into reinventing ourselves and coming to terms with all the difficulties that we have not solved yet.

Sit with your back to a beautiful tree. She is moving into a dormant state for Winter but the leaves have not yet fallen completely. Are you a falling leaf gently drifting to the ground? Are you sure of your future as you re-seed for Spring?

There is so much talk about change and shift and challenges. All of which are true. You can see the problems but have you solved them?

Take a look at your life in 5 years. What do you want it to look like? Be specific. Write it down. Put it on the Sacred Wheel: how do you see it in the South? In the physical world? How do you see it in the West? How have your dreams been vanquished or elevated? What is your dream? Describe it in the biggest terms possible. How is your relationship with Spirit? How has the clarity of Spirit taught you? What is your relationship to Mind in the east? To the old wise one within you?

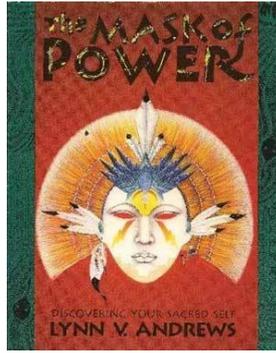

The story of man is a story of a search for treasures. Most search for material wealth, the purchasable commodity. But a rare few search for something greater; far more vast. For you, the greater treasure is the gift of truth and beauty, the timeless gems that make life worth living.

The work that we are doing together is a living testament to our longing to understand and give meaning to life. So, create in your mind beads of diamond, crystal, sapphire, ruby, turquoise, silver and gold ... symbolizing each of your treasures. Perhaps diamond for marriage or relationships, silver for vocation, turquoise for abundance, and so on. Gather them together in the palm of your hand. Treasure these beads and feel the beauty of them. Hold them up to the sun and feel the weight of them - for example, ruby which may represent your relationship to Great Spirit may feel different from coral which represents another aspect.

This is a time to gather your symbols which are food for your spirit in the long hibernation of winter.

In Spirit and with love,
